

Luncheon & Workshop Opportunity June 21, 2019 12-5:00 p.m. Hyatt Regency Tulsa

Leadership Tulsa is thrilled to be hosting the 2019 ALP National Conference. As part of that event, we will be hosting a luncheon and afternoon workshop open to members of the Tulsa foundation and nonprofit community. Our guest speaker, Byron P. White, will introduce the Tulsa audience to Asset-Based Community Development (ABCD), a strategy for sustainable community-driven development.

Asset-Based Community Development was founded by John Kretzmann and John McKnight at Northwestern University. ABCD challenges community leaders to create opportunities for people instead of providing services. It is based on the premise that by identifying and mobilizing unrecognized or underutilized assets a community will drive its own change.

Workshop Opportunity

Join your colleagues for an opportunity to learn more about ABCD—Asset-Based Community Development and how you can use this method for civic engagement.

Achieving Inclusive Engagement through Asset-Based Community Development

During this three-hour, post-conference event, attendees will take part in a high-energy, interactive exchange where they will:

- Gain an in-depth understanding of ABCD principles and practices.
- Address the power dynamics that inhibit collaboration among residents, associations and institutions.
- Discover how issues of equity related to race and class impact ABCD work.
- Explore ABCD techniques through the 12 Domains Activity Game.
- Test ideas with colleagues on how to apply ABCD practices in their communities.
